Top UK Firms Relocate Internet Operations Deep Underground

by Steve Boggan
The Independent - London

Some of Britain's biggest companies are running their Internet operations on systems installed in a 300ft-deep nuclear blast-proof bunker to protect customers from violent, anti-capitalist campaigners.

They are renting space in hermetically sealed rooms capable of withstanding a one Kiloton explosion, electro-magnetic "pulse bombs," electronic eavesdropping, and chemical and biological warfare.

Hundreds of companies have already installed systems in The Bunker, formerly known as RAF Ash, outside Sandwich in Kent, and dozens more are understood to be queuing up for space. They have been driven underground by the IRA bombings of Canary Wharf and Bishops Gate in London and, increasingly, by concerns over the operations of anarchists behind sophisticated protests such as the May Day anti-capitalist rallies.

At stake are billions of pounds worth of business conducted over the Internet. Companies are concerned that while electronic security, while using increasingly sophisticated encryption codes, is gradually making customers feel more confident about conducting credit-card transactions over the Internet, the physical side of e-business is still vulnerable. The fear is that servers, the small electronic boxes through which customer traffic and business transactions on the web are channeled, could be physically vulnerable to theft, damage or sabotage.

For companies conducting business solely over the Internet, the loss of a server could be catastrophic, while offline there can be no sales and no income, and customers will go elsewhere. Records, too, are vulnerable to attack, hacking or simple damage, resulting in shutdowns that could cost even traditional companies millions of pounds.

Now organizations such as Scottish Widows, BT Cellnet, Richer Sounds and the Bank Automated Clearance System - which deals with inter-bank transactions - have acted, putting their e-business and confidential dealings out of harm's way behind guards, barbed wire, dogs, electronic detection systems, millions of tons of earth, 4 miles of concrete, pressurized air locks and rows of steel doors.

"This isn't paranoia or fantasy, this is the future," said Dr Ian Angell, Professor of Information Systems at the London School of Economics and author of, The New Barbarian Manifesto. "There are sophisticated anti-capitalists out there who feel a great deal of resentment against the business world. These are the new Luddites and, given half a chance, they would smash the machine to pieces."

Behind The Bunker is a company called AL Digital, established by the brothers Adam and Ben Laurie and Dominic Hawken. Ben Laurie is already revered in the computing world as the man who co-wrote Apache-SSL, perhaps the best-known encryption technology available over the Internet - a tool used by some anti-capitalists when arranging demonstrations.

Three years ago, AL Digital heard that a RAF facility with state-of-the-art electronics and communications systems was to be auctioned off. RAF Ash was one of four underground command and control centers at the heart of Britain's National Air Defense System. As part of a cost-cutting exercise, it was to be mothballed only seven years after undergoing a complete overhaul and upgrade.

The AL Digital team made a sealed bid - still secret, according to the Ministry of Defense - and the 60,000 sq. ft. bunker with 18 acres of land was theirs. "The facility was designed to withstand a nuclear attack without disrupting RAF computer systems," Dominic Hawken said. "Their computers were about radar, but there is little difference between that and hosting a website. Some people have argued that our defenses are a little over the top, but they're here now. What can we do, shave a little off the walls?"

To enter, visitors must pass through security checks before being allowed through layer after layer of restricted access; of the 49 employees on site, only a handful are allowed into the bowels of the structure. Here, one finds doors that take two people to open and concrete grottoes called Faraday Cages that act as electric buffers between the hostile outside and the environmentally pure, air-filtered inside.

There are three back-up power systems big enough to fire up a small town when busy; the National Grid buys energy from The Bunker's four turbines. There are dedicated telecommunications lines installed for the RAF which are now available to customers at between 250 pounds a month for a single server on a shelf, to "several millions" of pounds a year for the kind of huge space being rented by a large - and unnamed - international computer company already inside The Bunker.

There is also a fire station, vast underground fuel and water tanks and an array of cameras on corridors and servers - you can even have a camera pointed permanently at your little box to make sure no one tampers with it.

Mr. Hawken added: "Co-location is now the buzzword; if your records are destroyed, you want at least one back-up in another place so your business can keep operating. There are many reasons why companies are choosing the safety of a nuclear bunker, but I think the anti-capitalist threat is the most compelling."

"That whole thing is about bringing down large companies and the weakest link is to get to where their information is stored and destroy it. Because of encryption, they can no longer interfere with data, so they may try to damage the hardware that physically contains or controls it. For companies operating over the Internet, that means targeting their servers."

None of The Bunker's customers contacted comment, for security reasons. However, one, a large multinational computer corporation, said: "The Bunker provides us with a level of physical security and reliability unobtainable in the United States. Experience taught us that digital security unaccompanied by physical security is worthless. The Bunker provides us with the highest levels of both."

Other companies said they simply felt they could relax knowing their Internet operations were physically safe from attack.

Professor Angell said, "You have to understand. Future wars will be fought by capitalists and anti-capitalists as society polarizes. When that happens, control of information will be as important as control of territory used to be in conventional conflicts. If you can stop your enemy from destroying your information, then you have a good chance of winning the war."

INVICTUS

by William Ernest Henley
(The Last Words From Tim McVeigh)

Out of the night that covers me
Black as the Pit from pole to pole
I thank whatever Gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeoning of chance
My head is bloody but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms the horror of the shade.
And yet the menace of the years
Finds, and shall find me, unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul.

"Most people's logic fails when they speak of Timothy McVeigh. Warriors have killed in a variety of ways and with a variety of reasons throughout history. Pilots drop great numbers of bombs that kill hundreds, sometimes thousands. They receive medals. These are sanctioned murders by the State. McVeigh is surely not a coward - and choosing death over life in a cage is quite honorable. It is not necessary for you to agree with him or his act. Were the military men who helped burn the people at Waco to be considered Warriors? Yes, even though the people should punish them, they are still warriors. The definition of a Warrior from the dictionary is, a man engaged or experienced in war. McVeigh was engaged in war in Desert Storm and at Oklahoma City." - Tom Metzger

PROMOTING INDIVIDUAL & COLLECTIVE ACTIVITY TO ADVANCE THE WHITE RACE

Joseph Paul Franklin - Associate Editor

The great White Aryan race must be advanced and protected at all costs and above all other issues. Your family is, or should be, your most prized treasure; as should your extended White family of racially conscious White men and women. WAR associates are individuals, not robots. As individuals, we may disagree on many issues, but on race we must stand together.

THE ENVIRONMENT

A healthy White race cannot remain healthy in a polluted environment. Overpopulation by non-white invaders destroys the racial and natural environment. Any method that reverses this deterioration is good. We are well aware of corporate greed and its effects on our delicate environment. It's up to all of us to clean up and shape up. Also, massive consumerism stimulates overproduction. Overproduction leads to big-time waste. Conservative lifestyles of quality used clothing, furniture and appliances assists in a small way to cutting down on waste. Buying used is not demeaning and refurbishing pre-used items helps cut back on waste. Madison Avenue propaganda, designed to tempt you into buying what you may not need, is not a beneficial thing for our environment. Conservation and common sense are the watchwords.

ARMED CONFLICT

Aryans should not support foreign military conflicts for the enrichment of transnational corporations. Aryan nations should never war against non-White nations, except for living space or food. Aryan nations should control their populations, so as to live peacefully within their well-defined borders. For example: An Aryan North America could respect the borders of Mexico and carry on trade. The primary need for armed conflict is to protect the gene pool. Modern wars of this century have been primarily trade wars, spurred on by capitalist overproduction, seeking new markets for products. These wars were not for the benefit of White people, since millions of White people died in WWI and WWII alone, both military and civilian. The finest specimens of our race have died in wars which had nothing to do with cultural and racial well being and advancement. One of America's most decorated Marine Corps Generals, Smedley Butler, said, "War is a racket," in his book by the same name.

ABORTION

WAR supports birth control and abortion for non-whites living in North America. WAR encourages racially conscious White women to produce White children. WAR does not promote force against White women to bear unwanted children. As the non-white races continue to breed with little control, White people have voluntarily destroyed millions of healthy, White babies. Future doctors, scientists and engineers who will never serve their race. Those who have bought into this suicidal way of thinking must at some point receive future Aryan justice.

The controlled arms on the same Frankenstein body. WAR is strictly racist. A house or a race divided cannot prosper. Healthy ideas of both left and right, along with totally new ideas, must form a growing united front.

ALLIES AND ENEMIES

An ally is any individual or group who makes a positive contribution toward racial separatism. This includes Blacks, Asians, or others who honestly support a program of racial separation. An enemy is one who is opposed to us. Those who promote race-mixing, which leads to hybridization, whether consciously or unconsciously, contribute to our racial destruction. No matter what their motives, these people are the enemy, no matter what their race, nationality or religion.

RELIGION

Our race is our religion. WAR condemns priest craft and all religions. WAR will not allow religious theories and unproven myths to interfere with Aryan survival and advancement. Whites must deal with reality and the world around them. We must demand evidence by those who attempt to control us through unsubstantiated stories from the Middle East.

INTERNATIONAL

WAR advises all U.S. racial activists to concentrate on freeing North America from non-white aliens and from racial suicide. Aryans of Europe must develop their own Aryan movements. White Europeans have unique problems that need to be addressed by their own leaders. WAR must concentrate on North America. We do not recognize a border between White nations. North American Aryans must concentrate their efforts where they will count. We cannot be carpetbaggers to the world! Our war is North America. If we cannot save North America for the Aryan future it is unlikely that Europe will survive either. North American Aryans are facing the ultimate challenge which will be irreversible at some future point. WAR salutes all the Aryan struggles around the world, however, the motto, charity begins at home, must be the watchword.

RIGHTS

WAR promotes possibilities built on the strong. WAR does not support the myth of god-given or natural rights. WAR deals with evidence and not faith. WAR promotes a natural aristocracy. 'Rights' is a terribly misused word which causes more bloodshed and sorrow than most other words. It is an abstract term which should be replaced with the word 'privilege.' All systems grant privileges as long as you are a dutiful citizen and follow orders. Those who act as individuals and act on that premise, may quickly find their 'privileges' taken away. There is very little, if anything, that the strong cannot take from the weak. White people must always depend upon their intelligence and use their muscle to back it up, instead of this belief in abstract rights.

ECONOMICS

Economics is important to the welfare of the Aryan people. When economics threatens our existence, then those policies must be radically changed. The present Coca-Cola society is a direct threat to the race and the stability of the world. Economic determinism must be secondary to racial determinism.

THE SUPER STATE

The rise of the super state based on economics is a direct threat to racial integrity. The state must be viewed as an enemy who is destroying our culture for power and profit.

WOMEN

WAR recognizes the basic differences between male and female. Beyond that, WAR encourages women to involve themselves to the limit of their abilities to further the interests of the race. Qualified women operate at all levels of WAR. Most attitudes toward women are handed down by the major religions of Moslem, Judaism, and Judeo-Christianity. These belief structures are anti-Aryan. The Judaized concept of women is the most obscene. The Aryan male and female are a team.

HOMOSEXUALS

The desire to propagate one's kind is natural. It is rare in nature that this drive is limited. The question is, does nature cull out those it finds unfit for reproduction? Homosexuals must be encouraged to separate their lifestyles from the community at large. Homosexuality must not be taught as a positive lifestyle. The homosexual population is quite small and not the major threat to Aryan survival. The right-wing is obsessed with this subject and devotes too much time and money on this segment of the population. Closet homosexuals have existed for thousands of years. The best that Aryan heterosexual society can do is to limit their collective influence and keep the closet door shut. This issue must be approached from a genetic view.

PREFERRED FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Aryan oligarchy based on genetic aristocracy.

Terrible Tommy,

One phrase I have seen on your website is "your America." I assume this refers to the "White Man's America." This really baffles me, considering that White people have only been here for about 400 years. Technically, we don't even belong here. And the people who did get here first were of the kind that you put down because of their treatment of women.

Baffled.

Tom speaks:

I base nothing on who was where first. I base it all on survival of the fittest for race and culture. HE WHO HAS HOLDS. If you are too weak to hold, you lose. If Whites have decided to throw in the towel, using many excuses, I can't stop them. Evolution and Natural Selection trudges on.

In Israel, the land belongs to the Palestinians, using your logic. Jews have decided they want it and they took it.

(Baffled Again writes): Terrible Tommy,

You're right; it doesn't belong to them in that sense, just as America doesn't really belong to us. It really belongs to the "Native Americans," who were here first. The Jews took it over by force thousands of years ago, were shoved out by the Romans, and then came back in after World War II. We came in and took "the new world" by force and then founded "America" based on emigration. Its whole purpose was for other people to come here. It doesn't belong to any one race or religion.

Still Baffled.

Tom's Response:

It doesn't belong to mis-named Indians either. They came from Asia. White Europeans were here also thousands of years ago, but so what? We Europeans took North America and if we wish we will hold it. If not we will either be run out or bred out. We are already the richest third world nation. Make no mistake, just because you allow them in doesn't mean they love you. In fact, as they get the upper hand you will pray you never allowed them in. Universalism today is promoted simply, because economic elitists wish to use the cheapest labor they can get. Whites demand a higher standard of living, so they have decided we must go. The funny part is Whites are doing their work for them. The great plan to bring Eastern Europeans in was simply (as usual) to undercut the White workers who were here. The rich didn't do it because they wanted to give this new wave a wonderful life. They did it for profits. What a sad situation.

Dear Sir or Madam,

I found your website last night and only intended to get a general overview of your organization. However, after reading for almost two hours on various subjects you had listed, I knew I needed to know more. I must compliment you on the writing on the site - it is very well written and cohesive throughout. I was never at a loss for understanding of either the writers or the principles involved.

I have been searching for information on Aryan issues for some time, with no luck in finding intelligent, purposeful people behind the issue. I am so glad to have found your site. Your scope and breadth of understanding and insight were quite impressive and I would like to receive more information on how to assist your organization, and also how to find others in my general area.

I appreciate your taking the time to read this short note and once again, I praise you for your commitment and professionalism. I do hope to hear from you soon.

^N Tom.

White Greetings! I used to be a member of the Elk's Lodge. They had about 800 members in this county. Yet only about 50 people attended the weekly meetings. I learned then that the dues from the other 750 members were paying for the work being done by the 50 who really cared. Of course, they needed the money from the 750 good-time Charles in order to get the lodge work and projects accomplished. It is the same with "The Movement." We shed the dead wood around here and no longer have a "membership club," period. We get just as much done, maybe even more than before. And we have less hassle and less let downs about people drifting away and not paying dues, etc. We found that many joined in the past because they wanted a membership. Then, when their curiosity was satisfied, they vanished.

Keep telling it like it is.

Dear Tom Metzger,

Hello. I am sixteen years old. In my English class I was given the topic, "What Makes People Hate?" I am supposed to write a 15-page essay answering this question. For going about my research, I decided not to be blind. Instead of taking the easy route by asking people who were going to give me answers that I've heard over and over on TV, I decided to get the truth. I am sick of politically correct answers, and I want to find out what people really think. I want to know why you hate. I am after the truth, which is why I come to you. I just want to know, why? I don't want my paper to be biased, so I want to hear all opinions.

I understand that you are probably a very busy man, so I would just like to thank you for reading this letter. If you cannot find time to write, I truly understand. If, however, you can find time I would sincerely appreciate it. Thank you again for your time and consideration, and I hope to hear from you soon.

Truly Yours.

Response from Tom: Dear Simon,

Why do people hate? Hatred, as well as love, make up the human personality. You cannot have one without the other. My dictionary says "HATE" is extreme dislike. If that is so, then we certainly all hate somebody or something. At the same time, we may also love somebody.

Unfortunately, men and women have been taught to have guilt feelings. Guilt becomes the national sport; they are always feeling guilty and at the same time trying to expiate that guilt until much of the population is driven half mad. Guilt leads to hypocrisy. If there is a thing such as evil it is in those two words and their effect on people.

I am plain spoken and I think truthful. First there is logic. I love my self and my family. Beyond that I should love my extended family, which I call my Race and its culture. I realize that without my family and my extended family I am nothing. Following logic, I hate any enemy of myself or my family and my extended family.

An enemy is anyone or any group who might attempt, through any means, to destroy or weaken my family, my extended family, or myself. My extended family is the Euro-White race. The majority of those enemies are actually of my own race and they are destroying the future of my race for either profits or religious fanaticism.

I am not prejudiced, but I do discriminate. I prejudice no one. I prejudice no other race. I have studied them closely around the world and have made conclusions based on evidence. My race feelings are based upon education and observation.

No one loves all the time and no one hates all the time. Anyone who says they only love and do not hate is a liar and a demagogue.

As you notice, the people who cry peace the loudest also use the most weapons of war. In the Gulf War, many Americans prayed for victory and a high body count in their churches but denied they hated, as two hundred thousand Iraqis died and are now starved systematically.

I think very few people have any idea of love or hate. They are just empty things who walk around like the dead in the film, The Night Of The Living Dead, or the other film where the dead kept trying to get into the shopping center because that's all they could relate to: Shopping!!!!

I am a racial-cultural determinist, trapped in an economical-determinist society. I am amazed at the arrogance of the PC crowd. They are so sure they are correct. America is now becoming a Third World State. Immigration has become the quick route to genocide. Wide-open borders and massive White abortion insure the end of the Euro-American race.

I hate that. And I hate anyone who contributes to it. But first it starts with love of what once was and now is being destroyed on a daily basis.

I pity the person who does not have the capacity to love and hate. They are truly the undead.

Sincerely - Tom Metzger

Thoughts On McVeigh

Terrible Tommy comments: As you all know by now, the execution of Timothy McVeigh is going forth. By the time some of you receive this, he will be dead; the first person to die by federal decree in 40 years. McVeigh obviously fired the first major private volley across the bow of the Iron Heel. No one can take that away from him. I received a number of e-mails telling me that McVeigh was not a model Aryan and may not have even been racist.

I say to them - You miss the point! Any serious move against The Beast in Washington is positive, even The World Trade Center operation, carried out by non-white Arabs. In fact, The World Trade Center was a far more important target than the Murrah Federal Building. However, let's not compare apples to oranges here. Both were significant for different reasons. The Murrah Building was one of the key federal outposts for those who were involved in the WACO Massacre. I want you to rent a video if you can find it. The movie is low budget and stars Dennis Hopper. The title is Tracks, a 1976 film. A lot of the film is irrelevant except for the beginning and the last scenes. It has to do with a Vietnam veteran who returns to this country and who has a mission. The military turns out thousands of killers each year. Are they trained to kill? Will they kill? Possibly. With a license? In most cases, like corporate enforcers overseas or, if need be, right here on your main street. If you're not aware of the many times the U.S. Military has been used against its own citizens you receive an "F" in History. They usually soften the tone by calling them the National Guard. However, is there another percentage who are prepared to kill without a license? Yes, and part of those trained killers are with us. Some just go off on their own, for personal reasons or for money, like robbing banks. In short, there is a surplus of out-of-work killers out there who may, like McVeigh, begin to see things a bit differently than the average sheeple. When they do, watch out!!

McVeigh Critic

The following e-mail is from Billy Roake, National Alliance Membership Chairman:

"I hope that when you do comment about McVeigh after his death you point out the fact that at first he denied all appeals, when he saw there was no hope and wanted to be a martyr for the Movement. Then, when it was found that evidence was held back by the prosecution and he saw that he may have a remote chance of a stay, he filed for appeal immediately and only then, when he was denied by two courts in the next two days, did he finally try and jump back on the "martyr" bandwagon, before anyone was the wiser. At least, point out the truth when you pass judgement, whether positive or negative."

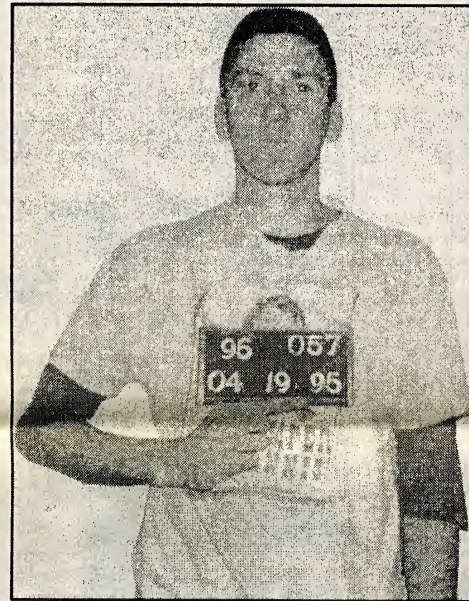

Response from Terrible Tom:

I get a little mixed up some times when I get e-mail like this. Billy, as I get it, is a major player in the National Alliance Organization. Also, I understand that Dr. Pierce, who leads the group, wrote some pretty radical books. One was The Turner Diaries, whom many of you are familiar with. In that book people like McVeigh pulled nearly the same operation that took place in Oklahoma City. Only the building was different. Am I being told that because McVeigh did not bomb the FBI building in La Cess Pool Grande, killing everyone along with an FBI day school center like was in the Murrah building, that he is disqualified as a revolutionary? Let's get something straight here. McVeigh wanted to die. When all the new evidence came forward he saw a chance to bloody the system's nose even more by staying alive a little longer. McVeigh was a Martyr two seconds after the Federal Building went kaboom and nothing from that point on will change that. I have a lot of contact with people who claim to be associated with the National Alliance and most of them like McVeigh and do consider him a Martyr. Saying that his decisions were decided upon simply to get on the Martyr bandwagon is an insult to one of the gutsiest people the right-wing has ever produced. Yes, right wing because he had not yet evolved to my state of mind on race and some other things. Instead of throwing dirt on McVeigh and his memory, I suggest you quit buying into the same spin that I have been hearing from CONservatives lately. If you love the Ashcroft's of this country I say, leave a respectable revolutionary organization like the National Alliance and go back to the Republicans, where it appears you would be comfortable.

Green Mountain Boys

Dear Terrible Tommy, Wild Bill, here. Subject: History certainly repeats itself! Between 1764 and 1769 there were 150 different riots in the thirteen colonies. Tenants wielded axes against their land-lords while poor people burnt down theaters protesting the rule of the Elite. They were not protesting against the King but expressing their rage with the conditions and laws that existed at the time.

To those in power who were accustomed to European hierarchical societies it was very scary. The old ways were beginning to crumble and life would never be the same in the New World. One of these men who were taking things into their own hands was Ethan Allen. Allen settled in the Green Mountains of what we now call Vermont. Once, when taken to court, he exposed himself and then threatened to spill the blood of anyone who opposed him. Many people like Allen had settled in the area after fighting the French-Indian wars. Governor Benning Wentworth of New Hampshire promised them land for their efforts. The problem was that the land given to farmers was claimed by the state of New York as well. This led to conflicts. Allen was taken before a court in New York where the judge was a competing landowner and the trial was a forgone conclusion. They ruled against Allen but he warned the court, landowners and the corrupt judge that repercussions would follow. They quickly disappeared back to Albany. The Green Mountain Boys took over and ruled the countryside. They burned the houses of anyone who owned New York leases and threatened the safety of all who opposed them. The upper classes of New York may have rigged the legal system, but they did not control the land. Allen carefully built his image and then used the threat of violence to scare off his enemies. Once he locked two New York Sheriffs up in different rooms and made them think he had just hanged the other. When released, the sheriffs ran back to New York only to find they had been made fools of, and Allen's unsavory reputation was only increased by the incident. While the Green Mountain Boys were fighting New York's authorities, a revolution was breaking out in New England. The boys of Vermont could relate to the uprisings in Boston. Both were fighting against distant rulers who sought to control their lives. They were both fighting for liberty so, when fighting broke out, an alliance was made. The Green Mountain Boys controlled the West Side of the mountains and were happy to fight against the British. While many history books speak of leaders such as Washington, Jefferson and Adams, people who became radicalized through their own action, like Allen, really won the American Revolution. They rebelled because of conditions, not because of the advice of leaders. When we look at disturbances throughout this country, we would do well to remember our first revolution. When conditions get bad enough, the people will revolt. It is as simple as that.

Terrible Tommy says: Wild Bill, I could not have stated it more clearly.

The British Great White Hope

Tommy says: The English right-wing is all excited over election gains by the British National Party (BNP). At the same time Blair, who is committed to the final dismantling of White England, was voted back into office by a large margin. I don't like to piss on the parade, but until a violent opposition rises from the streets in England aimed at the top, conditions for Whites will only worsen. Small advances by minor parties are another form of mental torture to well-meaning right-wingers. I know, I played that silly game for two decades. Every time a small party gets a few more votes in any country, the right-wing gets all gushy, saying that their time is coming. In short, they buy into the criminal democratic scam. You don't really believe that a conspiracy, which has been afoot for hundreds of years, bent on world dictatorship, would allow themselves to be voted out, do you? The only way they will leave the seats of power is feet first.

White Backlash

Terrible Tommy, from an associate regarding your WAR Position #2, "Move a Labor Pool." I read a couple of newspaper stories related to this process. One was about a company in Africa that is being used to process insurance claims for American companies. The other story was about a growing industry in India for taking telephone calls from America for customer service calls. In India, they actually train the people to lose their accents so the callers from America think they're talking to local service reps. Naturally, the reason the American companies are doing this is because of cheap labor in Africa and India. The yuppies and the office workers thought they'd be safe. But now that most of the manufacturing jobs have already been lost, the Jews and the traitors are coming after the office workers. This transfer of various service jobs is being made possible because of the newly globalized and centralized telecommunications industry. One more thing, I think many White revolutionaries are waiting for some kind of universal spiritual awakening that will touch us all at the same time and ignite the backlash. I think the backlash will come about due to the first and only catalyst: hunger pains. When the Jews in Israel and the media and the government get us in World War III with the Moslems, the Arabs are going to stop sending us oil. I mean, they're not going to send us oil so we can send ships over there to bomb them. And back here in America, when there's no gas in the gas stations and no food in the supermarket, Voila! hunger pains.

Whenever the Jews and their non-Jew co-conspirators move, there are always 4 factors:

1. To Remove A Government
2. To Move A Labor Pool. (20 million Whites have been eliminated and are being replaced by non-whites).
3. To Transfer Property (A majority of White peoples' property is being transferred into the hands of the tiny elite and to foreign interests).
4. To Change An Economy (This is nearly done. Free Enterprise is dying as Capitalism gains control.)

The past 2000 years of world history can be analyzed by that 4-factor formula.

TERRESTRIAL - 1996

Why So Few White Racists?

by R. Oliver

Recently, I rented the movie Romper Stomper out of curiosity. This is not a synopsis or critique of the movie, but there is a scene in the movie that I thought was a pretty good allegory of life as a racist. The scene is when the skinhead group is beating the hell out of some Asian kids, who had just bought the local pub. As the fight rages on, Asians start coming out of the woodwork to help their fellow Asians out. It looked like every Asian in Australia suddenly jumped in to kill the skinheads.

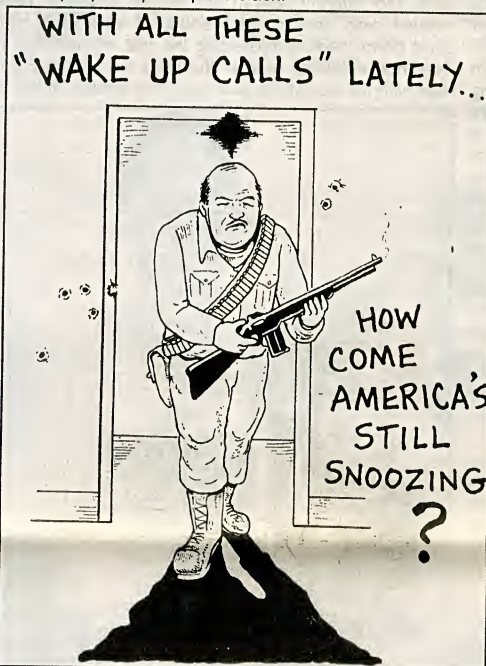

What struck me was that no one was helping the skinheads. They were completely alone and outnumbered. One would argue that the skinheads were the bad guys attacking the poor, defenseless Asians who were only taking advantage of the free market, being attacked without cause, and this would not warrant support for the skinheads. However, would it have made a difference if the skinheads were just skipping down the sidewalk and a pack of Blacks jumped them? The White general public would rather help a Black criminal get away with murder than help out skinheads or any group of avowed White racists. This brings me to the point of this article - why so few White racists?

In all parts of the world, Whites are the enemy. This is because we are the world's masters and the world resents us for it. Our superiority is obvious in the technology around us. The fact is that we showed them, not the other way around. Civilization around most of the globe is attributed to White conquerors and explorers. Race was a given. There was no question about it, but it was taken completely for granted. When Rudyard Kipling wrote about the "White Man's Burden," he illustrated the grand sense of accomplishment, which Whites felt, so much so we felt that we owed the rest of the world our gracious services. It was felt that we should pity those who were not fortunate enough to be White, to help those who could not possibly help themselves. Sound a little like Affirmative Action? Kipling was more direct and honest in the way he felt than most modern liberals, but it amounts to the same thing, and with the same results.

Whites are made to feel guilty about slavery, despite the fact that, like the Asians in Romper Stomper, we took advantage of a product to be purchased as well. This is the new and similar White Man's Burden, fed eagerly by the media and Hollywood. Never has it mentioned that members of the White race invented the very things people use every day - the automobile, the computer chip, the microwave oven, the space station, and so on. Whites are not given credit for anything at all, except accusations of exploitation and global cruelty. The effect is that Whites have no sense of racial importance, both because it never seemed necessary to dwell on their successes and to most Whites, it still doesn't. We excel at things by design with no explanation, instead of attributing this to racial drive. Whites accomplish much because of a sense of self or national pride, while other races think of their race first.

A good example of this is during the previous

Presidential Election in America. When Whites were asked about the issues, by and large they mentioned what they thought would be good for the nation. Whites disagreed on philosophical levels about how the country would advance. Blacks and Mexicans only talked about what would be good for their race, with no mention of the country they lived in at all. I would ask the White multiculturalists out there exactly what the non-White races are contributing to the countries where they live. I can guarantee that it's not even considered. Why? They have White people to pick up the slack.

Historically, Nationalism seemed to be enough because the concept of a racially diverse country, living and working in pseudo-harmony, was not even considered. Separation was the norm for any country with more than one race. When America was colonized, it was an all-White country. Asiatic Indians were the common enemy and all was well. Nationalism equated to racialism indirectly. No other races had this concept because they had no hand in designing or constructing the country. When we brought the Blacks over as slaves and the Mexicans came over as workers, all they had was their race and some semblance of culture that, for the Blacks anyway, has all but been replaced by a conglomerate "American" culture, which is bastardized at best, soulless at worst. Is there any question then why Blacks want to tear down everything we've built? They are saboteurs because they have no other way to be. We're the ones who tried to tame the rattlesnake. Now that it's biting us repeatedly, we have a choice to make. We throw the snake off of us and crush it with a rock or we let it kill us.

White Americans built America, long before we really considered race relations. National pride has been passed down to us for so long and it's so deep in the American ideal, we still haven't realized that race actually matters. The non-racially conscious Whites have not realized that, without the White race, the world would collapse into chaos. Sound dramatic? It shouldn't when one looks at the current state of affairs that, as Whites sell and / or give away power all over the world, it is consequently dying, the world with the race.

What I want to address here is not the validity of White pride, but specifically why more White people don't have it, so something can be done, unless we choose to just sit around waiting for the Day of the Rope.

There is no question that the White struggle has no support from the general public. I also have no doubt that if Whites were collective in their efforts, even for a little while, the entire world would be changed forever (see Germany's Third Reich), so it comes down to pride. Inherently, all people not only have pride, they actually need to have pride in something. Maybe it's the company they work for or their local football team, but it's there and people tend to be very passionate about it.

So, if someone can be passionate about a football team or their country, how could they transfer that pride to race?

It's naive to think that if you simply took away one type of pride, especially national pride, it would be replaced by racial pride. However, in the youth ranks, there are a lot of young racists out there who got their initial distrust of the government from anti-nationalist punk rock. That's more or less how the skin movement was able to spread so much in the 80's and early 90's. So, what would happen if that were somehow promoted on an adult level? Most adults would probably retreat to religion for comfort, leading them to conservatism and then we're right back where we started. Religion is something else entirely, but to put it succinctly, as long as we have a general population of Whites who believe that Jews are the chosen people of God and actively worship a Jew, we will never have an overall racial consciousness.

Where would America be without Nationalism and Religion?

What would happen to all the White people and the countries we've built?

No one said it would be a pretty transformation, but it is like religious penance. We must slash and burn what we have built in order to preserve the ideals that the materials were based upon, which is ultimately the will that defines the race.

Lone Wolf Activism

by Katherine Seligman

Tim McVeigh has emerged as the poster boy for hate groups.

They call him a "lone wolf," a freelance activist who takes sole credit for the nation's dramatic domestic terrorism. At a time when extremist groups find themselves increasingly infiltrated, investigated and discredited, some are reaching out to the unaffiliated to carry out their mission of revolution.

"The lone wolf, the small cell is really the wild card today," said Brian Levin. "It's problematic. They are capable of much more lethal attacks than they ever were before."

In the past, Levin said, you were much more likely to know who the terrorists were. They belonged to groups whose names were known. Now, as many groups tailor their outreach to lone activists, the next terrorist could be harder to detect.

In the age of the Internet, they have the perfect vehicle. Hate web sites have grown exponentially.

They offer the freelance terrorist a buffet of extremist philosophies. Web surfers can find racist publications from a variety of sites, among other things. A number of sites glorify the lone wolf - and McVeigh.

The White Aryan Resistance site, run by Tom Metzger, founder of the racist group and its newspaper W.A.R., features a snarling wolf with bloody teeth. Metzger calls McVeigh "our soldier." He urges followers to "believe in our race.... All else is up to the individual."

"The advantage of lone wolf and small cell activity is that it is untraceable and is the best use of our meager resources, no membership dues, rental of meeting halls, driving, lodging and time off for endless conventions," said an activist.

The lone-wolf rhetoric has its roots in the "leaderless resistance" movement that emerged after two federal raids in the 1990s - the 1992 standoff at Ruby Ridge, Idaho and the death of Robert Mathews, who founded the supremacist group The Order.

In response to the raids, a few individuals began to speak about a movement of "lone individuals" whose acts would snowball in a revolution. It was later embraced by Metzger and others.

The lone-wolf tactic was also epitomized in the racist novel "Hunter," the sequel to the 1978 "The Turner Diaries," an excerpt of which was found in McVeigh's car.

Watchdog groups see the lone wolf appeal as troubling, largely because its influence is difficult to gauge.

"It's very much the era of the lone wolf," said Mark Potok of the Southern Poverty Law Center. "McVeigh ushered in that era.... It's very worrying."

Today's terrorism doesn't need a broad base. The greatest threat may come from an unidentified individual, someone on the fringe, an angry individual.

Revolutionary Psychology

from a WAR Associate

A study of history reveals that at no time in the past has there been an oppositional group, struggling against an existing power structure, which had to face the challenges that confront us today. Even a cursory glance reveals that the System monopolizes, or at least dominates, every form of public opinion; they have a complete strangle-hold on economic avenues, which they use to bribe or blackmail dissenters; and the enemy possess overwhelming military force, made even more formidable due to Aryan technological advances.

Hence, it becomes obvious that we are engaged in the ultimate revolution and our one chance for victory that remains demands a new breed of fighter, one who is prepared to accept and overcome unfortunate realities.

The first step towards becoming such a person requires a two-fold change in thought, where we view ourselves as well as others in a whole new light. First, we need to examine our internal attitude. We claim that not only do we want a better world, but also that we are worthy of one! This being the case, it logically follows that the only way to prove that and make it a reality, is to first create a better me, you and us. Dr Gobbles wrote: "The thing is only what you make of it; and that includes you too!" In this same area, without having their money or their media, we have the ability to be far superior to the enemy.

You see, the System's major flaw is that many of its critical components do not actually believe in the worldview that is disseminated for public consumption. No, numerous individuals, often seen as powerful or important figures, only support the System because they realize which side their bread is buttered on.

Such people view politics only in light of self-interest, ego-gratification, fear and monetary considerations. The true masters of the power structure are dedicated and committed, but the same cannot be said of many, if not most, of its followers.

This has led to such "representatives" making bad impressions on the masses, which creates a chink in what otherwise would be impenetrable armor, assuming these people honestly believed everything their enemies stand for, and acted fanatically upon these feelings.

These same problems exist on our side, but fortunately they're correctable. While there are those within our ranks who support politics in hopes of some form of gain, or without giving their all, many others sincerely desire a future for our Folk, and want to play a part in securing one.

Our initial goal must be organizing and teaching such elements, until we form a solid phalanx of these individuals in leadership positions, encompassing all levels of the Struggle.

This article is primarily intended for those of you who have the potential to fulfill such roles and that would include most of you reading this. All anyone has to do in order to meet such requirements is to bring out the best they have within them and once we do, you will see that man for man, and woman for woman, we have the capacity to run circles around the enemies' personnel.

Step one on the road to accomplishing this is to accept one simple truth: A National Socialist must act in a matter worthy of our philosophy, 24 hours a day. Every one of our actions, in one way or another, either furthers or sets back the cause. This doesn't mean one of our adherents can't drink, smoke or relax. It also doesn't imply every conversation has to be political, or that we need to turn ourselves into stereotyped caricatures promoted by some older people who have lost touch with the times; but it most assuredly does mean that all of us must never act in ways which degrade what we stand for.

If two good people see you piss-down-the-leg drunk, acting the idiot on a Saturday night, they're not going to embrace your political thoughts Monday afternoon - period! Now and forever more, others will decide who we are and what we stand for by what we do in their presence; which is to say we are always Struggle promoters. Anyone who cannot accept that should think twice before claiming to represent a world view which millions, literally millions, have given their lives for.

In order for a person to view himself or herself as an integral part of our Struggle, they must first become valuable, which means bettering ourselves. This is something everyone is capable of doing, albeit on different levels.

The fact that most of us aren't going to turn ourselves into Hitler is irrelevant, and doesn't lessen what we can become. These positive changes usually take place in two areas.

a) Mentally: Not everyone has the time, or the ability, to read a thousand pages of complex political thoughts, but no one has a good excuse for not being able to learn the basics which make up our belief system, which is also a prerequisite for convincing others that we are correct. An easy way to increase knowledge within the Struggle is for local comrades to get together and discuss the issues of the day; the solutions we offer, and our position on a wide range of topics. This leads to a unified conception, which always equals an increase in our striking power. A duty of the more advanced is to help others fulfill their potential. A National Socialist doesn't stand on his comrade's heads in an effort to appear tall, but rather works to pull others up as far as their capabilities allow.

WITH ALL THE PRO-ZIONIST
SWILL ON PAY TELEVISION

.. IT'S ENOUGH TO MAKE
YOU WONDER... IS IT REALLY
CABLE T.V. OR

b) Physically: The forerunner of personal cowardice is almost always a lack in confidence in ones own physical abilities. To put it mildly, we cannot afford cowardice in our ranks at this time - or ever for that matter! Strong men will not generally go too far out of their way to fight weak men; but they will sacrifice for worthwhile ideals presented by men who are strong in their own right.

All of us can work to keep ourselves in shape, as many of us already do. Even those of us who are of more value on an intellectual level to us still need to be healthy. This isn't only because that is what's always best for the individual, but also because we believe in the doctrine of body and mind, which means it's critical to prove to our fighters that these aren't just hypocritical, empty words.

The second aspect of revolutionary psychology is external, which is to say how we see others. The world we live in is far from 1920's Germany, or even the western nations of the early 60's. No, in our times the Folk are bombarded from birth with the most insidious, mind-numbing propaganda imaginable, fed to them by a colossal machine designed to poison the popular mind and which uses devices not even in existence during the lives of our early National Socialist leaders. The results of this campaign are deplorable, but also predictable, and to blame the unfortunate victim for acting as they've been conditioned is stupid in the extreme. Yet, at the same time, to pretend human nature isn't corruptible, or that the people are better than they are in reality, is absurd.

Numerous individuals, who agree with every word we say, still won't fight with us because they see what the masses have become, and wrongly conclude that the situation is hopeless.

They wish people were better than they prove themselves to be, and become frustrated when their expectations are not met. They end up condemning their own kind, instead of those responsible for these conditions and, sadly, they usually end up spreading some of their defeatism before they quit the Struggle for good. The enemy has beaten such individuals - not on the field of battle, but in the privacy of their own minds. One thing is clear: There is no reason for a National Socialist to take this road of depression but, we do have to learn to accept the human material we have before us and to figure out ways to overcome the handicaps they present.

The way to do this involves how we see others. When I was young I owned a 1969 Dodge Charger, which was constantly breaking down; often enough, when I was in the middle of nowhere without proper tools and I would be left with a choice: Figure out a way to fix the problem, or remain stuck!

I recall one time I had to use a monkey wrench when what I really needed was a ratchet and socket set. I got my knuckles plenty tore up in the process, and yes, I admit I threw down that wrench a few times in frustration, cursing bloody murder but, in the end, that didn't help and the problem wasn't solved until I learned to use the correct tool for the job. People are exactly like this too, and if we are to be victorious, we must view them in this light.

Now, before anyone accuses me of insulting the Folk, or promoting the worst aspects of pragmatism, let me state clearly that I do view our people as unfortunate victims of degenerate propaganda, poor social conditions and lack of proper education.

When I see a White man or woman I realize the person standing before me is the product of a great past, and within them exists the genetic make-up for an even greater future. However, the immediate reality is that the only way there will be any future is if we can get what we can out of them as they are now, which isn't anything we don't demand from ourselves as well. For those of you who still think I'm preaching "the ends that justify the means" our enemies use, let me add a couple of things first: In our case, the ends do justify the means, and second, if we want unborn generations of Aryans to be honest, honorable and intelligent, if we want unborn generations to be born at all, then handcuffing ourselves with Sunday school moral precepts isn't only foolish, it's suicidal! This means making the most out of the talent and commitment an individual has, not wishing they were exactly what we needed, or spitting on them because they are not able to do what you think they should be doing. The other side of the coin is that while we are getting the most out of every supporter, we need at the same time to be working on developing them, to advance them, and to attract new members through their example, until we reach the stage where we have the right people for the right positions, installed into the Struggle. This is possible, but it does require realism.

The Pan-Aryan revolution in thought doesn't only signify the change from egotism to idealism, which is to say blood before self, but it is also about eradicating fantasy-land delusions from our heads, and embracing the truths of the real politic. Serious-minded people need to accept what is and capitalize on it, while we create the human material necessary to obtain our ends.

At the beginning of this article, we learned the truth: that this is the ultimate revolution; standing against us is an opponent who possesses an immense amount of technology, which they do not hesitate to use ruthlessly to secure their power. This is a formidable obstacle I admit. However, on our side we have something never equaled, much less surpassed by any invention in the history of man. I am speaking about Aryan brains! When we use them to the best of our ability, and to their full capacity, we become the ultimate revolutionaries! Once that is accomplished, comrades, we can be sure victory will soon follow.

Hispanics: Pain in the Ass!

gathered by WAR staff

Where I live is 53% Hispanic. Not humble, working people either - crime-happy, young arrogant mobs of men who make you walk by them like a gauntlet (all hours - even early morning - you can't escape them - they're always in groups on the streets) and they look you right in the eye and laugh under their breath, like you're the entertainment. I've seen them ogling 11-year-old girls on their way home from school. They take offense at everything, and take revenge at any slight (like telling them to stay away from you or let you pass) by vandalizing your house or following you around in bands.

They are very bold and impudent and they're always the wronged party (MACHO plays both sides against the middle and thus always 'wins'). They seem to know that their sheer numbers give them the upper hand. Sex and violence is always explicitly their favorite recourse, and it's always initiated by their rules (which nobody understands but them; they are very tribal).

The women use sex for everything. Their loudly stated goal at work is to sleep with the boss. They have married up many of the White men, sometimes they just get money out of them by promising more than they deliver (I've seen this first-hand), stringing them along by stealth and manipulation. They are never honest and straightforward. They have the persecution complex, like the males. Everybody owes them something and everything is a big soap opera. They have endless amounts of babies, which they use as hostages to get more goodies and manipulate men. They get paid to have sex and breed, basically, (not necessarily through welfare) and I've even seen them break up White marriages. They get away with sub-standard output and a minimum of English and they are not shy about saying that they don't like 'White people,' out loud and frequently, don't want to work with Whites, don't want to wait on Whites, don't want to live near them, etc. They blame Whites for all their problems.

I'd like to live where there are no Spics. NONE! I've had my fill. They have a lot of government jobs here (they go to college on grants and suddenly they're the director of all the social services, where they are inefficient and put off everything till 'manana.' These caseworkers are Hispanics hired for their 'bilingual skills,' but they have no work ethic and no follow-through. They do the minimum required, take no initiative and the children or families they are assigned to assist receive no help due to their mishandling of the case and their downright laziness. This I have witnessed first-hand. They have lowered the standards and the work ethic has been redefined by their lower standards.

I saw a family of 6 generations who went to Harvard (Hispanics on an affirmative action basis) being interviewed on a morning talk show. The latest 'graduate' seemed to have trouble following the interviewer's questions. It was totally bogus. They're all talk and temper and no product. One of their biggest growing 'front' industries to stay in this country and funnel funding to themselves are the plethora of tax-free churches which they have 'founded,' of which there are 6 or 7 of these in my 2-mile square village! I want to get out of this cesspool they've created.

Kids (any color) can't even play little league because they rip up the field with their soccer games. They come early, without a permit, and form a gang so even the parents who have their kids in a league for a scheduled game are afraid to ask them to leave, and the local town boards even rule that they can't use the field, but they ignore the ruling and come to meetings 100 at a time to intimidate everyone. They leave Town Hall in a bad temper if they don't get their way and they retaliate by slashing car tires. (Again, I'm a first-hand witness). Not one of these migrant soccer players pays a tax or votes or in any way contributes to the upkeep or beauty of this park and the equipment. None of them have a green card. But they have TAKEN the field by sheer numbers and FORCE, implied and then carried out. They act like they have a 'right' to take over the park in the first place and that they have been WRONGED when asked to go through the proper channels and take their turn like everyone else. No, they're SPECIAL.

Even some Jews marry these women. They like the Third World submissiveness that hides the sneakiness, because they like to feel smarter than everyone and these women know how to make men feel like that. It's not a straightforward match of equals. It's two brands of connivers teaming up for their own agendas. The Jews also see the growing numbers and hear the cash registers ringing from this horde and are quick to jump on it. All these women seem to do is SHOP, take lovers and have babies. Men are the money source; they never strive to be independent, though they will swap men many times looking for more take (and it doesn't seem to matter how old these women are-they keep 'operating').

Too bad it's their gene pool that's getting passed on and not mine.

Scientific With The Term Race

by WAR staff

Since it is your desire to be scientific, you should correct the general way that you use the term race, to be consistent with the modern science of taxonomy. You are often using the term race when you should be using the term species.

For the modern definition of the term species, you should probably be quoting Stephen Jay Gould, who is a foe of Herrnstein's, The Bell Curve.

On page 73 of the 2nd edition of Gould's, The Mismeasure of Man, Gould discusses Charles White, who was an English Surgeon in the late 18th Century.

In biology, the classic definition for species (which is no longer valid) is that if two organisms can interbreed and produce viable offspring, then the two organisms are the same species. White pointed out the flaw with this definition in that, "... successful hybrids between such conventionally separate groups as foxes, wolves, and jackals occur ..."

Gould explains the modern definition for the term species in the footnote on page 73 in The Mismeasure of Man, 2nd edition:

Modern evolutionary theory does not invoke a barrier to interfertility as the primary criterion for status as a species. In the standard definition: "Species are actually or potentially interbreeding populations sharing a common gene pool and reproductively isolated from all other groups." Reproductive isolation, however, does not mean that individual hybrids never arise, but only that the two species maintain their integrity in natural contact. Hybrids may be sterile (mules). Fertile hybrids may even arise quite frequently, but if natural selection acts preferentially against them (as a result of inferiority in structural design, rejected as mates by full members of their species, etc.), they will not increase in frequency and the two species will not amalgamate. Often fertile hybrids can be produced in the laboratory by imposing situations not encountered in Nature (forced breeding between species that normally mature at different times of the year, for example). Such examples do not refute a status as separate species because the two species will not mate in the wild (maturation at different times of the year may be an efficient means of reproductive isolation).

Anyway, clearly Caucasoids and the other primates are of different species by the modern definition of the term species. After all, various equality programs are needed to force Caucasoids to come into contact with other groups of primates.

Our society could be described as a massive laboratory experiment. The fact that some interbreeding is taking place under such unnatural circumstances proves nothing about what is a species amongst primates.

Some Caucasoids look a little different from one another. Germans look a little different from Italians. Those are subspecies (races). In the case of Caucasoids, clearly by Gould's explanation, they are a separate species from all other primates.

The time for keeping one foot in the real Struggle and the other in the make-believe, patriotic right-wing camp, is rapidly drawing to a close. One cannot serve both God and Mammon, nor can one serve his or her race, while at the same time honoring it's executioners.

The White racist Movement has come to the point where it must purge its ranks of those whose primary interest is rightist or economic politics. These dolts are closer to being disenchanted Republicans than actual White Nationalists. These folks, for the most part, cannot be cured of their reformist tendencies. They are the ones who, while paying lip service to the 14 Words, are the first ones to recommend that you call your congress whores to whine about the latest jerk of the master's leash. They pass useless petitions around which demand that spics assimilate by learning English. They protest the idea of letting queers in the Goy Scouts, when real White Racists turned on that organization the moment it started allowing niggers in it's ranks. Their real "beef" with the System is that it takes too much of their precious money away from them. This can be ascertained by grilling them a little bit. Reformists want to tinker with The Beast. Revolutionaries want to drive the proverbial stake through its black heart. A reformist wants to live life in a suburban bubble, and is happy as long as the only muds they see are the ones who mow the grass and clean their houses. Revolutionaries place the establishment of a White Racial Homeland above all else. What is an issue to them is the continued survival and upward expansion of the race.

When A Hate Crime is Something to Love

by Wesley Pruden

Black pain and white piety is a winning combination in contemporary America, as many phony liberals demonstrate over the years.

Nobody manipulates this combination better than Morris Dees. Few do it as well.

Racism in America has become big business, real and otherwise, which is no doubt why Bill Clinton, who got caught several years ago peddling a phony story about church burning in Arkansas, says he'll be getting into it from his $700,000-a-year offices in midtown Manhattan. The appetite for sensation, even when it is half-baked sensation, is insatiable, and Morris Dees could show him how to profit from it.

Mr. Dees is a lawyer in Montgomery, Alabama, who is the "national chairman" of something called the Southern Poverty Law Center, which sounds like the hide-out of a noble band of warriors against hate crimes and other racial wrongs, but is actually a fund-raising scheme that could teach televangelists a thing or two.

In fact, maybe it has. Morris Dees, says his former partner, "is the Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker of the civil rights movement, though I don't mean to malign Jim and Tammy Faye."

Mr. Dees took in $44 million from gullible contributors, mostly White, in 1999 and spent $13 million actually trying to help the poor and beaten down, mostly black, fight for their civil rights. He has been well known for years to reporters in the South, most of whom have never written much about who he really is. Mr. Dees, like the late I. F. Stone or the living Jesse Jackson, became a pet rock of the media, engaged in a calling so noble that it is regarded as tasteless, or at least suicidal, to notice that he runs around naked. The Rev. Billy Don Moyers endorses his fund-raising schemes, so what else does anyone need to know?

Ken Silverstein recently told another version of the Morris Dees' story in Harper's magazine, and it's a tale well told. What captured Mr. Silverstein's attention is the most recent project of the Dees "Law Center," a kit called "Teaching Tolerance" that is available for only $30 on the Dees web site, with the firm but meaningless assurance that it's a "$325 value." (Why not $425? or $525?)

What the buyer gets is a compendium of hate crimes that any casual newspaper reader already knows about, described in vivid ink of a purple hue, spreading the alarm that the Ku Klux Klan, heavily armed white-citizen militias and six Nazi Panzer divisions that never made it to Omaha Beach are bearing down on Cleveland, or maybe Providence. (NOTE: Now that's a funny line!) Even a journalist for the 11 O'clock Eyeball News on channels 3 through 10 would blush twice trying to peddle stuff like this. Then we get the dirty little secret of hate crime reporting.

"Horrible as such incidents are," writes Mr. Silverstein, "hate groups commit almost no violence. More than 95 percent of all 'hate crimes,' including most of the incidents [Mr. Dees] cites (bombings, church burnings, school shootings) are perpetrated by 'lone wolves.'"

Indeed, membership in the Ku Klux Klan, which is Dees' most lucrative fund-raising target, has shrunk so dramatically that the Klan would have been out of business years ago but for FBI infiltration. In some chapters the only members with paid up dues are FBI informants.

In one case cited by Mr. Silverstein, Morris Dees won a judgment for a black woman whose son was killed by Klansmen. She received $51,875 as settlement. Mr. Dees, according to an investigation by the Montgomery Advertiser, pulled in $9 million from fund-raising solicitation letters that featured a particularly gruesome photograph of the grieving mother's son. Mr. Dees, who pays himself an annual salary of $275,000, offered the grieving mother none of the $9 million dollars her son's death made for him.

Mr. Dees, in fact, earns (or is paid), which is not necessarily the same thing, more than nearly any officer of other advocacy groups surveyed by the National Journal, more than the chairmen of the ACLU, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and Children's Defense Fund.

"You are a fraud and a con-man," Stephen Bright, director of the Southern Center for Human Rights, which actually takes on dozens of death penalty appeals for poor Blacks every year, once told him. "You spend so much, accomplish so little, and promote yourself so shamelessly."

Mr. Dees does not take death-penalty cases because this might scare off contributors in safe, White liberal neighborhoods, many of whom imagine that the death penalty keeps Black robbers, murderers and rapists off their streets.

White guilt can be manipulated with Black pain, but it has to be done carefully.

Some people would call what Morris Dees does a hate crime, but it's a living, and a very good one.

National Alliance Member Killed By Cops

14 hour stand-off ends with death and two cops seriously injured

Mr. Metzger,

Since you can get the word out well, I thought I should inform you of an Alliance member whom the Chicago Police killed. His name is Eric Hanson and is a National Alliance member. The Jew media only has said that he was a White Supremacist.

June 5, 2001 - A standoff between police and a man suspected of shooting two state troopers at a grocery store in north suburban Lindenhurst ended when police exchanged gunfire and fatally wounded the shooter.

When he died, Eric D. Hanson, 27, had two guns on him - a 9-mm handgun, which he had reloaded twice, and a .380-caliber handgun, which he did not use.

The death of Hanson, an apparent White Supremacist who had been convicted of a hate crime, followed a 14-hour standoff between the suspect and dozens of police officers at the Eagle Country Market. The incident began about 5:30 p.m. Monday at Hanson's home, when two plainclothes state troopers from a covert investigations unit approached the man as he was sitting in his sport-utility vehicle, said Capt. Ken Hall, Commander of the Chicago district of the State Police. After a conversation, the troopers told Hanson he was going to be arrested for weapons violations. Hanson was a convicted felon whose firearm owner's identification card had been revoked, Hall said.

But Hanson drove away, with the troopers in slow-speed pursuit in separate vehicles. Hanson pulled into the parking lot of the Eagle Country Market, stopped his truck and opened fire. A bullet shattered the windshield of one trooper's car and struck the officer in the neck, breaking his collarbone, Hall said. The 38-year-old trooper, a State Police Sergeant with 15 years on the Force, then somehow took a gunshot in his thigh. The other officer, a 30-year-old special agent with five years on the State Police, returned fire but apparently did not hit Hanson, authorities said. That trooper was hit by two shots but was saved by his bulletproof vest. He sustained only bruises. Hanson ran into the store, then came back out briefly and fired about 10 rounds at police, Hall said. One round ricocheted off the shotgun of a Lindenhurst officer. Hanson then ducked back inside. That trooper underwent surgery. The other trooper was treated and released.

Hanson was convicted in 1999 of a hate crime and illegal weapons possession. In the hate crime, Hanson had followed a couple home from a Gurnee supermarket and threatened to assault a Black man who was with a White woman. After his conviction, but before his sentencing, Hanson was arrested again for illegal weapons possession, for which he also was convicted. During the sentencing hearing on the hate-crime charge, police testified they found a cache of weapons, ammunition, racist literature and photos of Adolf Hitler in a search of Hanson's Gurnee apartment. Police also said Hanson's right arm had tattoos of a sharp-eyed eagle, a symbol of Nazi Germany, and of a sledgehammer and a sword underlined with the words "White Pride." Hanson was sentenced to one year in prison for the hate crime. At a separate, subsequent hearing on the weapons charge, he was sentenced to an additional 364 days behind bars.

White Students Increasingly Harassed

sent in to WAR staff

Here's a startling statistic that's been ignored by the local media and the schools for the past five years: Proportionally, more White students than Black students feel they've been racially harassed in Seattle's public high schools.

This statistic comes from two comprehensive surveys conducted by the School System in both 1995 and 1999. The confidential surveys, the results of which were released to the public in 1996 and 2000, posed the following question to Seattle public high-school students: "Has anyone ever made offensive racial comments or attacked you based on race or ethnicity, at school or on your way to or from school?"

In both 1995 and 1999, Latinos, the fastest-growing racial group in Seattle public schools, responded proportionally in the affirmative more than any other racial group. Fifty-one percent of Latinos replied, "yes" in 1995, and 42 percent replied, "yes" in 1999. Students who identified themselves as "multi-ethnic" made up the second highest racially harassed group: 51 percent in 1995 and 38 percent in 1999. These statistics certainly shouldn't surprise anybody.

Moreover, it shouldn't surprise anyone that Asians, Native Americans, and African Americans also complained of being racially harassed (newly immigrated African students did not have their own category in either survey). However, in the midst of this melting pot, White students also responded yes, and more frequently than some of the other racial groups, most notably African Americans.

In 1995, 48 percent of White, Seattle-based public high school students complained of being racially harassed, putting them just behind Latinos and multi-ethnic students. In 1999, that number dropped to 32 percent, but they were still ahead of Native American, Southeast Asian, and again, African American students.

Now compare that to Black students, our nation's most historically persecuted racial group. In 1995, 36 percent of African American students complained of racial harassment. Only Southeast Asian students complained less about racial harassment that year. And, in 1999, African American students complained the least about racial harassment. That year, only 26 percent of Black students said they'd been racially harassed.

The mainstream press did not write about these statistics when they were originally released. When the surveys were originally made public in 1996 and 2000, press coverage focused on the general trends covered by the survey - student drug use, violence, and sexual promiscuity, primarily. It looks as if the rest of the surveys, with all their interesting details, were just thrown into the garbage.

Maddeningly, school officials who are familiar with these puzzling statistics didn't seem interested in getting to the bottom of them. Pamela Hillard, the school system's program manager for health education, directed the comprehensive survey in 1995 and 1999. Hillard stressed that overall, complaints of racial harassment have dropped 12 percent from one survey to the next. But she couldn't explain why White students consistently and anonymously grumbled about feeling harassed. Every politically correct Seattleite knows that Whites have no reason to feel persecuted. So why do they?

"I don't have a particular take on it," Hillard says. "It surprises a lot of people. It doesn't surprise other people. I don't have anything in particular to say to you." What???

The confidential surveys can't be accused of lacking in thoroughness. The school system administered them to every school student who was in attendance on the appointed day. Almost 3,000 White students and roughly 1,400 Black students completed the survey in both 1995 and 1999. (Overall, there are roughly 13,400 Seattle public high-school students; 41 percent of them are White and 23 percent of them are African American.)

The most unfortunate thing about the survey statistics is that they don't offer more information. There is no way to tell if the White students were complaining more at Cleveland High School, where Whites constitute 11 percent of the student population, or at Ballard High School, where they constitute 60 percent of the student population. (Of course, that question can be applied to any racial group.)

The survey results DO include some uncensored comments that students made about racism. When given the opportunity to be anonymous, some White students did not hold back:

"Racism at our school is not racism like White towards Black but Blacks toward White," one student wrote. "We are referenced as 'White kid' or 'White trash.' We don't pay attention to this, but if White people call Black people 'niggers' we get beat up. I think it's SICK!!" Another student wrote, "I don't see any White kids harassing Black kids, but I do see it the other way around. No racial comments, but they'll jump in the faces of White kids, trying to scare them. Then they laugh about it."

But those random comments yield little more than anecdotal inklings about how racial interaction in our schools really happens. The school system seems to have completely failed to investigate the issue further. A year and a half ago, the statistic was brought up during anti-harassment training for school faculty. According to one attendee, everybody was puzzled. "People had all kinds of questions," says Celia Arriaga, who works in the school system's drug and alcohol department. "The response was, 'Well this doesn't make any kind of sense.'" Today, no one is any closer to explaining the phenomenon. "Maybe we need to go back to the [White] students and ask them," Arriaga says.

Law Enforcement Is The Police State's Servant

sent in to WAR staff

Cops Who Say "No"

I was a police officer for many years and am now retired. It is apparent to me that you suffer a few misunderstandings of the police officer's job.

However, that is not to say that you aren't correct. There are many laws that are stupid, wrong, unconstitutional, feel-good (hate crimes come to mind) and silly. Each police officer is given discretionary decision-making power. That means that barring the commission of six particular crimes (Burglary, Arson, Rape, Robbery, Murder and Mayhem) a police officer may decide for him or herself whether to arrest, report, release in the field, or simply to do nothing. For decades, I nullified bad laws (e.g., concealed carry of a weapon by honest citizens, gambling and prostitution) and so did many other officers. We did it because we had the power to and it was the right thing to do.

Before you suggest how to correct modern-day law enforcement, I suggest you first review the reason modern, local law enforcement is becoming the police state's handmaiden. It is simple: Federal influence. Since the Nixon / Mitchell Administration, federal funds, training, hiring standards and procedures have penetrated into local law enforcement in an insidious manner. Training is of the siege mentality type, fear is inculcated in training, and the belief that no one needs a firearm but the police is encouraged and fostered. Waco was made possible by a perjured affidavit swearing that a drug lab was on the premises. They lied and got the army to help under Titles 26 and 32, USC. These are the same people who have been training local law enforcement for decades. Until we can remove the federal influence in local law enforcement, it will just get worse. Hell, it may not even be reversible.

I respect your intentions, but there is a hell of a lot you don't know about how bad it has gotten in local law enforcement. Many of these kids have never read the Constitution, nor have they been required to. They also have a natural antipathy towards armed citizens as a result of brainwashing in primary and secondary school. Many are also unrestrained and unfamiliar with self-discipline. This can be fatal if not harmful to an innocent who is doing nothing more than lawfully owning a firearm.

The job of police officer is one of the safest there is statistically, and I am sick of police administrators, in their effort to build empire, lying about being "outgunned." They pander to federal anti-constitutionalists by crying for more gun laws, but no mention of severe treatment for violent criminals. No one is in law enforcement by way of impressments or the draft. They are all volunteers and if anyone is in fear of armed citizens and not armed criminals, they should get another job, perhaps a milk route. I wouldn't recommend the U.S. Postal Service, though. Local police are in danger of ceasing to be responsible at all to their local community and taxpayers.

The Author's Column

The cop's writings I received above are disturbing because it reflects concerns that I've heard before, but says that the problems are much more advanced than I've suspected. Two years ago, The Cato Institute came out with a report that made a splash at the time, and then, as is the way with such things, awareness and concern sank without a trace. In "Warrior Cops: The Ominous Growth of Paramilitarism In American Police Departments," Diane Cecilia Weber started off by saying, "Over the past 20 years, Congress has encouraged the U.S. Military to supply intelligence, equipment, and training to civilian police. That encouragement has spawned a culture of paramilitaries in American law enforcement. State and local police departments are increasingly accepting the military as a model for their behavior and outlook. The sharing of training and technology is producing a shared mindset. The problem is that the mindset of the soldier is simply not appropriate for the civilian police officer. Police officers confront not an "enemy" but individuals who are protected by the Bill of Rights. Confusing the police function with the military function can lead to dangerous and unintended consequences, such as unnecessary shootings and killings." The author then documented her point to an extent that provoked many right-thinking opinion pieces recognizing the concerns she raised, but without any noticeable impact on the federalization and militarization of law enforcement.

The note that I received from the retired police officer reinforces that, not only was Ms. Weber correct, but that the problem is so advanced that it's now difficult to find police officers who haven't been trained in that paramilitary culture. Since "Cops Who Say No" was necessarily directed to police officers who are willing and able to make moral judgments about the law, and who identify with civilians rather than the State, my column becomes moot if my correspondent is correct. What's the source of this problem? Well, there's plenty to share around, and both the former police officer and Ms. Weber suggest that the rot starts in D.C.

But there's finger pointing to be shared. Police have become soldiers because people let them accumulate power and training and toys - even encouraged it to happen. It was all in the name of "safety," the "war on drugs" and (of course) it was done for "the children" - those little yard apes who are evoked to justify every lousy idea in the modern age. And so we have, in the words of my correspondent, "modern local law enforcement that is becoming the police state's handmaiden."

Fixing the problem is another matter.
